

How to Include Measurable and Relevant Goals in Your Plans for Remote Learning Worksheet

Strategic Plan Goal	Remote Learning Objectives	Metrics	Data Collection	Action Plan
Every student receives a high-quality and equitable education with intent to raise rigor and is personalized to meet his or her learning needs	Do you need to make modifications to accommodate for remote learning? If so, what are they?	What defines success. If things are going well, what will the data show?	Where can you gather the data to measure results? Who are your key stakeholders? Who will review the metrics to analyze for feedback? Who will you solicit experiential feedback from?	Consider timeline or opportunities where transition and change can occur (at each term, during long breaks, etc.) Weigh risks v. benefits of any changes to be made with admin team first. Most importantly, communicate results and decisions for change to your community.
	Remote MTSS instructional strategies and tools used to ensure personalization, such as Achieve3000 Literacy, Actively Learn and Achieve3000 Math	Set minimum standards for usage of online tools Set minimum standards for synchronous online instruction Use Lexiles, Quantiles, or other formative assessment measures to evaluate students' growth and achievement	Education technology is a data-rich resource. Identify the reports you will want to use on a regular basis.	Review the reports to gain insight into teacher and student usage of online tools as well as student growth and performance every week. Share relevant data with staff through weekly faculty newsletter and monthly team meetings. Make adjustments as needed at the start of each new marking period.
	Content specific approved digital curriculum/resources and vendor list	Students in need of intervention will spend 2 hours per week utilizing online learning resources with targeted instructional scaffolds

How to Include Measurable and Relevant Goals in Your Plans for Remote Learning Worksheet